

ASI

delivering solutions

Imagine. You are one of the five largest power and natural gas marketers in North America. You have 4 million customers who rely on you for electricity — no pressure — just make sure you deliver. You are merging organizations. Putting two separate entities together to run on a single system. A process that will take about seven months to complete and all the while, your data will be frozen. No new work orders or service installs — nothing can be posted. You are faced with eliminating over 50,000 postings.

So what do you do?

You look to outsource this task. You turn to someone who not only has experience with gas and electric utility work orders, but one who supported your migration and is familiar with your data model — you turn to ASI to handle your request offsite. You don't have to hassle with setting up temporary offices, training and managing temporary employees. ASI's proven maintenance processes solve your challenges quickly and seamlessly. ASI responds with a solution that posts progress and tracking directly on your project web site, so you can manage from your office and know that you are on schedule for completion.

Success

You eliminate your backlog, and with the support of ASI, put a process in place to keep it updated for the long term. You provide accurate data — ever time — to everyone.
